FOREWORD

Learning to play the violoncello at a high level requires discipline, perseverance and regular daily practice in order to develop technical proficiency and to nurture one's musical ideas.

There is a great deal of literature on the cello but none of it is as comprehensive as Halina Ostojska - Rubczak’s book. She has thoroughly researched the development of cello playing and carefully selected the most relevant technical and musical aspects for inclusion in her book. This book is a goldmine of important information not just for cellists but also for any musicians who are interested in the development of string playing.

After reading her book I gained a much deeper understanding of string playing and I am grateful to Halina Ostojska - Rubczak for allowing me to read her book before publication.

I would strongly recommend to anyone who has an interest in string playing that they read this book.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

My heartfelt appreciation goes to Assoc. Prof. Hj. Inon Shaharuddin A.R. The Dean of School of Arts Universiti Malaysia Sabah, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Amran Ahmed, Deputy Vice Chancellor Universiti Malaysia Sabah and Dr. Hj. Ismail Ibrahim Deputy Dean of School of Arts for their support and help to publish my book.

I would also like to express my deep appreciation to my cello teachers Prof. Leonard Wysocki and his wife and Eugeniusz Zboralski for helping me to find the materials for writing this book and translating them. I am grateful for their wisdom and guidance.

I was very fortunate to have Prof. Dr. Josef Aronoff and Ms. Julie Webber working on my manuscript and helping me to make corrections, especially regarding the music terminology. I cannot thank them enough for their expertise. It was a pleasure and a joy to work with them.

Special thanks to Mrs. Anna Kozak and Mr. Przemysław Kiliński for translating my manuscript to English.

Finally, let me express my deepest gratitude to my mother, my brother and his family, and my husband for their love, encouragement and emotional support.
