

Aesthetics in e-learning websites interface design using kansei engineering method

Abstract

This paper presents the emotion responses between genders towards educational web design interfaces. The design concepts were categorized into three sections, text-based design, layout design and color design. The response was measured through Kansei Engineering approach in order to measure the emotion reaction towards educational web design interface between male and female students.