

Life on a block of limestone: Evolutionary, ecological and geological dynamics of isolated malacofaunas on tropical karst

Abstract

The karst formations of southeast Asia are a wonderful evolutionary and ecological experiment, and a sad example of observable extinction (Clements et al., 2006). In this paper, I shall focus on those in Malaysia and, in particular, on the land snail faunas that they support.